WORLD WAR TWO VETERANS

This may or may not be of interest, but if any of our members are, or have friends or relatives who are veterans of the second world war, you might like to know that the only people who were automatically registered in the new WWII memorial were those who were either killed in action or missing in action, and some of those were even omitted. There are many veterans who made it back from WWII who are not recognized and honored. I am a lifetime charter member of the WWII memorial and can register anyone who is entitled to be. If anyone is interested let me know. My email address is as follows: mary-gene@sbcglobal.net.

SLUGGISH (HEAVY?) ACTION

I have for the past several years tried to understand why a GS-60 Kawai in my care had such a sluggish (heavy?) action. I could find nothing wrong with the action geometry, so I finally gave up and called Kawai.

It turns out that the leather covering the knuckles was loose and caused an excessive amount of drag on the jacks. There were two cures, new knuckles or removing one end of the leather covering the knuckles, trimming or making the covering shorter and re-gluing. I chose to trim the knuckle covering and re-glue. This indeed made the action lighter, maybe even 9 grams lighter. I welcome any comments or criticism.

WORDS OF WISDOM FROM OUR PRESIDENT:

While refinishing a Baldwin baby grand for a customer last week, I had decided that the top probably looked fine, but would look better with one more coat of finish. Just as I finished spraying the final coat, the phone rang. I politely told the lady that I really wasn't interested in purchasing more insurance and then turned to see that two flies had decided to take a swim with all the tenacity of an Olympic swimmer in my finish! Have you ever had days like this? I'm sure we have all had days that we feel like we should have just stayed in bed, but we have to laugh and look on the bright side of life. Sometimes we need a little rain in order to appreciate the sunshine. I do, however, believe the world would be better off with a lot less FLIES!!!!! See you at the next meeting.

TIME OUT

MIDGET MOVER?

David and I get a lot of interesting comments and skeptical customers when we show up to move a piano. Quite often people will look at us and say, "Where is your help? There is no way the two of you can move this piano. Last time it took six gorillas." Last week we moved a very large, HEAVY old upright piano. The owners of the piano were a couple (very countrified) probably in their early 60s. The woman took one look at the two of us, scowled and said to David, "It's just the two of you?" David replied, "Yes, it's just the two of us." She shrugged her shoulders and rolled her eyes at her husband. The piano had to be taken out of a freestanding garage and rolled across about thirty feet of cracked, rugged pavement and dirt. Stabilizing an old upright under these conditions is difficult work and requires a great deal of concentration on my part. The woman proceeded to walk directly behind me and every time the piano would wiggle an inch or two she would make sounds such as, "Aaaah, eeeek, oh my..." You get the picture. I could feel the perspiration dripping down my forehead as I struggled to hold the piano steady and look confident.

When we arrived at the destination with the piano, I could sense that this couple was feeling a little more confident about our piano moving ability. We had at least survived the first half of the move. They ushered us into their new home and showed us where the piano was to be placed. Of course it couldn't be easy. The piano had to go up about four steps, through a living room, then through a very small hallway with doors that were offset from one another so that it had to be angled out one door and into another. It was, needless to say, challenging. We had about a quarter of an inch to spare in both doorways, but we made it. As we got ready to leave this home the man who was the owner of the piano looked at me and then at David and said, "David, you are one hell of a man! You brung you a half-growed woman to move a piano that I couldn't even roll an inch across the floor." The lady just shook her head and kept repeating, "FANTASTIC." We got into the car and laughed all the way down the street.

WHAT TO DO?

A question was asked of me: How do you handle the customer who tells you they'll be happy to leave the door unlocked so that you may come in, do the work, leave the bill and leave the house...

To wit I responded: I just do as they request with the query: Do they want the house locked when I leave?

Point of information: One thing I've discovered though, it is way too easy to take the liberty of looking around (the curious kind) at the layout of another person's home and their possessions with no one there. TRUST ME, if you value the privilege of continuing to go into other people's home, it is a wise choice not to explore the surroundings intentionally or haphazardly, as there can be video or surveillance cameras in operation. And in some carpeted rooms, your presence in areas not related to access of the piano and its location will easily show by the impression of your footprints.

DIETARY ADVICE...

A doctor was addressing a large audience in Tampa, Florida. "The material we put into our stomachs is enough to have killed most of us sitting here years ago. Red meat is awful. Soft drinks corrode your stomach lining. Chinese food is loaded with MSG. High fat diets can be disastrous and none of us realizes the long-term harm caused by the germs in our drinking water. But there is one thing that is the most dangerous of all and we all have, or will eat it at some time. Can anyone here tell me what food it is that causes the most grief and suffering for years after eating it?" After several seconds of silence, a 75-year-old man in the front row raised his hand and said, "Wedding cake."

HOPE TO SEE ALL OF YOU AT BOB SCHEER'S ON SEPTEMBER 16. STAY IN THE LOOP, BE INFORMED AND GET TO KNOW YOUR FELLOW TECHNICIANS.
